

This is a gall bladder. The green stuff in it is called bile and will ruin any food it touches.

I want to get rid of it first thing, and do it very carefully. I pinch off the top.

I can slide my finger under the tube at the top of the sack. The tube is connected to the liver below, so it takes a little effort. I use about the same amount of force to get my finger under the tube as I do to wiggle my finger under a taut string on the neck of a guitar.