

In addition to the buckets, I use a sharp knife.

I also need metal table. It is important that the table have a slope, because at some point I am going to accidentally cut an intestine and spill poop. I want the spill to flow downhill, away from my pile of guts, instead of into it.