

This pink tube is
the small intestine.

It is attached to this white layer of fat
called the mesentery.
We want to detach
the small intestine
from the mesentery.

To get started, I poke my index finger through the mesentery right under the small intestine and peel a few inches of it up. On young animals, the peeling takes as much force as peeling a ripe, juicy orange.
